That's why when I was looking for a group to join I couldn't bring myself to even think about joining proud boys. There's a lot of things they do that I respect and like you said there's a time and a place but I can't help but feel like they have a frat boy image and they're just out looking for a fight. Having said that, it's great when they help those in need and push ANTIFA away from trump supporters
